Introduction

An explanation of the training and why this new method is important for the student. This aligns with pedagogical principles in that it introduces a problem to the adult learner that directly applies to their job experience.

Relationship Explanation and How to Use this Guide

An explanation of the mentor and mentee relationship including key points for the mentor to consider when interacting with the mentee. This creates a relationship of trust and openness where the mentee feels comfortable failing, asking questions, and trying again.

- Key point 1
- Key point 2

Each requirement homepage has two sides: a mentor side and a student side. There are a few differences in what is included in each.

Pages list

An explanation of the differences between the mentor and student sections. This serves to increase the mentor's knowledge of the process for their mentee.

A description of the mentor's responsibilities throughout the program including a step-by-step list of the training procedure are included

Coaching During Task Execution

The expectations for the mentor during the performance of each task including directions on how to interact with the mentee and drive the performance to create a deeper level of learning.

Further engagement opportunities for the mentor are explained. These include a list of questions to enhance engagement:

1. How should you handle a loose dog in the middle of a grooming session?
2. A dog became aggressive towards another dog or person during the session. Tell me the steps you will take after the incident.
3. After grooming a dog in the standard format, you read the client chart and realize you did not adhere to the customer's desired format. How will you handle this situation?

Rubric

A rubric to grade the performance of the mentee while they accomplish the performance check. An explanation of the pass/fail grading system.

Directions on how to use the rubric. An online version was used for the official score. This online version used xAPI to track mentor and mentee progress and was saved in both personnel files.
